

Money Matters for Kids

Remember the phrase “money doesn’t grow on trees”? Turns out its true! Teaching children from an early age about earning and spending money can help them develop good money sense as they grow into adults.

Teach children about money, no matter what age they are:

Preschoolers

Help them learn about different coins and bills.

Set up a play store at home.

Let your child decide between two items at the grocery store.

Kids 6-8

Help them learn how to manage an allowance.

Let them start a piggy bank with spare change.

Teach them how to count change and trade coins in for dollars.

Help them learn to make good choices with the amount of money they have.

Kids age 9-12

Teach your kids about comparison shopping.

Let your child open a checking account.

Help them set a monthly budget to teach them how to choose to save or spend money.
